Attendees can look forward to tremendous fun and the opportunity to learn more about building, flying and maintaining Lancair aircraft. The two-day schedule currently being planned will include fact-filled forums, hands-on demonstrations, challenging builder and pilot skill competitions, informative vendor displays, optional field trips enjoying the local highlights, delectable victuals, a chance to show off your Lancair aircraft while appreciating the workmanship of fellow builders, and finally, for those who just love to yak about airplanes, hangar talk 'til your voice gives out.

I would like to get a count of the number of people interested in attending prior to March 1, 2011, so if you can RSVP to either myself or Claudette, that would be great!

If you're a Lancair enthusiast, don't miss this opportunity to help LOBO and Lancair International celebrate the world's best personal flying machines. Watch for more upcoming information.
